DESCRIPTION

Beautiful Ekklesia Townhouse is an old two-storey townhouse situated in the archeological settlement of Parikia built in 1600 and fully renovated in 2016 per Cycladic architectural style. This unique house is placed at the end of the market path, between ancient monuments - in an area which is preserved and protected by Greek and EU laws. It is situated next to the famous Bethlehem church, renowned as The Church of 100 Doors having one of the oldest icons depicting the birth of Jesus Christ. The design of the house beholds a delicate harmony of old and new elements reflecting the traditional Cycladic style. The reinforced original stone walls are complimented with local marble, stylish furniture, natural colours and fabrics enhanced with darker accents to create a traditionally simple yet modern town house. The outdoor terrace and porch give the house an airy feeling while preserving a sense of privacy.

The location is excellent for guests who would like to benefit from feeling the unicity of the rich atmosphere in Parikia, yet have the chance to be very close to beach and port.
